Workshops, seminars highlight Chamber's annual meeting

HALIBURTON — The Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce held their annual meeting and banquet on Wednesday, Oct. 28 at Wig-A-Mog Inn, in the new conference facilities.

This year's annual meeting featured a full days activities, including workshops and seminars starting at 9:30 am and ending with the banquet and meeting.

About 65 people attended the days workshops which opened with Georgian College's Ron Taylor's presentation on promotion of winter business. This was followed by a workshop on credit collections by Lorne McGuiness of the FBDB.

A panel discussion on borrowing from banks, FBDB and EODC was moderated by Steve Bowskill of Haliburton. The luncheon speaker was Bob Pollock from the Ministry of Industry and Tourism, who talked about how, why and when to incorporate a business.

Following lunch, two presentations were offered the first on consumer law and business practices and the second by the Ministry of Labour on how to keep the government off your back.

This was followed by a very informative computer demonstration put on by Radio Shack and R. Tyler Enterprises Ltd.

Guest speaker for the banquet which was attended by over 100 people, was Michael Perley from the Canadian Coalition on Acid Rain, who explained how his people were studying the problem and informing not only the people but the government on the effects acid rain is having on Ontario and especially the tourist areas of the province.

The presentation of the "Highlander of the Year" award was then made to Brad Robinson, owner of Robinson's General Store in Dorset.

The 1981-82 board of directors elected, were Barbara Bolin, Rhonda Elstone, Jim Orr, Keith Stephenson, Curtis Eastmure, Shawn Hagerman, Don Blakey, Ken Langdon, Jack McGregor, Dennis Casey and George Schmid.

From these 12 directors, an executive of four, including president and vice president will be elected tonight at their first board of directors meeting.

MISSING PAINTING — Now that art objects are being assembled for display in the Minden Library-Art Gallery, there is renewed interest in locating an Andre Lapine painting which disappeared in 1976. The painting, 16"x20" in size and referred to as "Tow Horses" depicts two large workhorses which appear to be towing an object up a stream.

OPP ask anyone knowing the whereabouts of this painting to contact PC Barry Connelly.

NARCOTICS SEIZED — On Friday, October 30 eight Minden OPP led by PC Al Bibby and the Canine Unit from Peterborough, searched for narcotics at the residence of Glenn Bowman of Kinmount. Seized in the raid were marijuana plants, cigarettes, seeds, seals and paraphernalia, valued in excess of $1,000.

OPP officers have charged Bowman with possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking.

New owner for Stedmans store

After 11 years as owner-operator of Minden's largest department store, Mr. Jerry Pillsworth of Minden, has sold the business to Connaughan Enterprises of Haliburton.

After the take over on Friday, Oct. 30th, Mr. Pillsworth told The Express he looks forward to a new career in real estate.

Mr. Connaughan who also operates the Stedman store in Haliburton, said the staff in Minden will be kept busy restocking the Minden store to capacity before the winter season is on us.

Stanhope Fire Chief George Wilson thanked Wayne Sutherland (right) for his wood safety awareness program sponsored by the Stanhope Fire Dept. last Thursday.

Residents hear how to burn wood safely at meeting

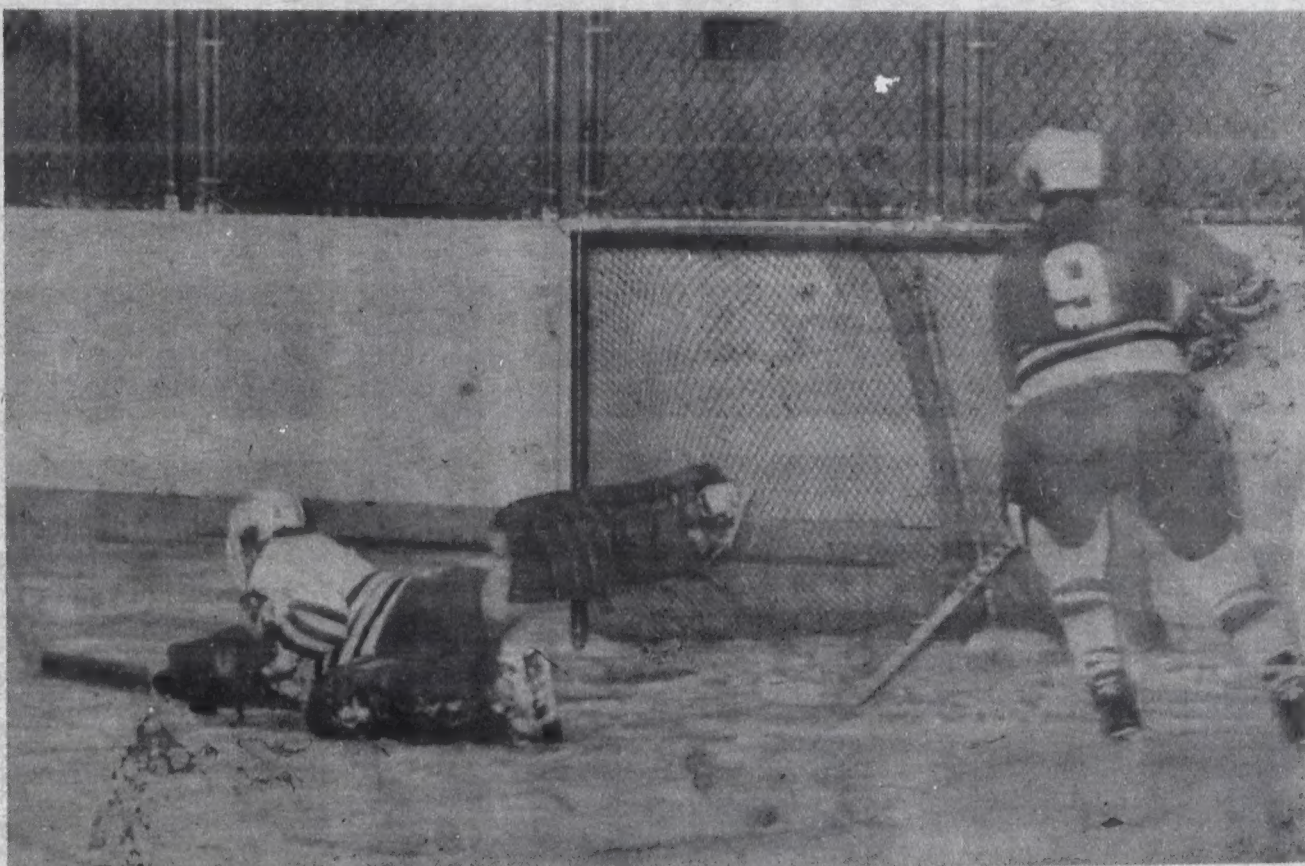

STANHOPE — A wood burning safety presentation was held at the Stanhope Community Centre last Thursday evening as firefighter Wayne Sutherland explained what is happening today with many wood burning appliances and how they are being abused.

Mr. Sutherland is a full time member of the Kingston Township Fire Department and showed a small gathering of residents what problems are encountered with creosote, how wood burning appliances should be installed and how they should be maintained.

He said that with the energy crisis upon us, more people across Canada are now trying to heat with wood and many of them are doing it safely, while many others are not.

He added that the biggest danger to families and their homes was the constant use of the fireplace to save energy. Designed for occasional use, the fireplace was attractive and served a purpose, but for continued burning for heating purposes it becomes a fire hazard to the inner walls, floors and ceilings supporting it.

A slide presentation made this very evident to the audience and Mr. Sutherland stressed that anyone just starting to burn wood for heating purposes should ask their fire department for a safety check before firing up a wood stove or the fireplace for continual use.

Duane Lennie stops them cold

Editorially Speaking

Canada, U.S. heading for big break-up in near future

Relations between Canada and the United States the two best neighbours in the world, are heading for a crucial break-up, and there are no two more unsuitable leaders to heal the breach than Pierre Trudeau and Ronald Reagan.

The list of outstanding issues piling up between Canada and the US ranges from fish treaties to acid rain. The Americans are understandably uneasy at the unfair way their companies have been treated in our government's efforts toward Canadian ownership of resource industries.

The auto pact which means a lot to industry on both sides of the border has to be re-negotiated and neither side is happy with the present terms.

Why, our borders are not even clear. Since imposition of the 200-mile offshore limit, it will take the World Courts to decide who owns the George Bank or an area of the Beaufort Sea, both resource-rich.

Then there is the Garrison dam project which Canada opposes and American Great Lakes pollution and Canada's poor performance in NATO — the list is as long as our undefended border.

And the men who must try to solve these differences are as different from each other as two leaders could be.

Reagan is a hard-line conservative, a militarist — a man who thinks people should look after themselves and rule themselves. His aim is to get government off their backs.

Trudeau is a socialist, whose philosophy is more government, less individual freedom and greater restrictions on business enterprise.

The two have little room for agreement on anything. The only thing they both have in common is a stubborn streak and an unwavering belief in their own infallibility.

Canada and the US are each other's best customers. This crisis between them is bound to effect their business relations and the well-being of individuals on both sides of the border.

But because we depend on them more than they depend on us, our loss will be the greater.

Lottery Overkill

By W. Roger Worth

Gerald Regan, the federal Minister of Sport and Recreation, wants to give Canadians an opportunity to place bets on the outcome of sporting events such as hockey and baseball, putting Ottawa back into the lucrative gambling business.

But there is a problem. The previous Tory government made a deal with the provinces, giving them the right to operate the nation's $1 billion lottery games in return for payments that put $29 million in the federal treasury this year.

Regan argues his scheme will be a game of skill, not chance, so he says he is not invading provincial territory. Naturally, the provincial leaders disagree.

Nevertheless, semantics and name-calling aside, there are some important reasons why Ottawa should leave well enough alone.

A simple example: Ottawa would be forced to duplicate or add to the ticket sales system that has already assisted many smaller merchants hard hit by rising interest rates.

The amount of red tape and additional administrative costs would create problems for these entrepreneurs, to say nothing of the cost the federal government would pay to operate the scheme.

Again, Canadians would be forced to view the silly phenomenon of one level of government attempting to outadvertise the other, pleading with us to spend more and more dollars in efforts to grab the big prize.

Regan and the federal government should change their thinking.

If Ottawa seriously believes gambling on the outcome of sports events is worthwhile, and if the money is needed for amateur sport, then Regan should convince the provinces to run such a program.

Competition between businesses in the private sector is a fundamental part of our free-enterprise system, but the spectre of elected bodies wasting money by duplicating their sales and advertising efforts is something else again.

For in the final analysis, it's the lowly taxpaying ticket buyer who foots the bill.

REMEMBRANCE

The beautiful colours of autumn have faded and now as we enter November our thoughts turn to those dark days of the two world wars which fewer and fewer of us can remember. This is good because those who can remember would never want such times to return. On the other hand we must never forget the price that was paid for the freedom we enjoy and sometimes take for granted.

The Poppy became the symbol of Remembrance after the Great War of 1914-1918 when disabled veterans started to make poppies to raise money to aid those who had answered the call and now needed help. The Poppy, as we wear it from now until November 11, reminds us of the sacrifice made by 105,000 of our men; boys in the golden years of their lives, eager to live but heeding the call of their country in its hour of peril.

Much has been said, but it bears repeating: from their blood our freedom flows. Only we can ensure their sacrifice was not in vain. The annual Remembrance Day Service will be held at Branch 129 Haliburton at 10 a.m., with the parade moving off to the Cenotaph at 10:45. Everyone is welcome to attend this service. They shall grow not old — — —

Mineral Exploration Program to Spur Development

An Ontario government incentive program established in 1980 to promote mineral exploration in the province, could be the stimulus needed to boost production of metallic minerals, Natural Resources Minister Alan Pope announced.

Mr. Pope said the Ontario Mineral Exploration Program (OMEP) administered by his ministry, should result in new mine development, regional economic development and the creation of jobs.

"The program was established (in Sept. 1980) because we wished to become involved in new interest in mining activities," he said.

"Although the mineral industry is a major employer in the province with more than 40,000 jobs, the fact is that even more incentive is needed to create even more jobs."

the Minister added.

OMEP, established by The Ontario Mineral Exploration Act, commenced on Sept. 1, 1980, offers eligible individuals and/or corporations, provincial grants or tax credits equal to 25 per cent of their exploration costs.

Regulations stipulate that neither grants nor tax credits must exceed $500,000 per program.

Individuals and non-mining companies are given approximately the same tax advantage on exploration expenditures as are now available to producing Ontario mining companies.

"I am pleased with response to the program, particularly in Northern Ontario," Mr. Pope said.

"The area which includes

Help your Heart...

the mining centres of Timmins and Kirkland Lake, is the main beneficiary with 60 programs and a total expenditure of $17.5 million — 44.2 per cent of all regional expenditures."

The Natural Resources Minister said that 234 applications from companies and individuals were submitted in the first year of the program, representing an exploration expenditure of $62.6 million.

"Currently, 126 programs are in progress with $8.1 million in potential grants and tax credits," he added.

If your car's out of shape you get rid of it, right? What if your body's out of shape?

New Load Security Regulation Effective November 1st

TORONTO—Ontario Transportation and Communications Minister James Snow reminds the trucking industry the new regulation governing load security comes into effect Nov. 1, 1981.

"Our intent is to ensure loads are secure under all foreseeable operating conditions which would include normal driving, evasive manoeuvres and panic stops. It doesn't, however, cover instances such as jackknifing, overturning, or collisions," he said.

The regulation was developed under the auspices of the Canadian Conference of Motor Transport Administrators (CCMTA) as a model regulation, offering a uniform approach applicable across Canada.

Basically, it requires every commercial motor vehicle or combination of motor vehicles and trailer or trailers to have their loads properly secured.

A technical bulletin outlining the legislation is now available at all MTC offices throughout the province.

"It's our hope this will increase safety on our highways, by reducing debris on all routes and eliminating the possibility of accidents resulting from insecure or shifting loads," Snow concluded.

Ontario model, Jodi Mallinson, achieves international fame

From schoolgirl to super model

In less than one year, Jodi Mallinson, 18, of Mississauga, Ontario, has been on 13 covers of Europe's major magazines and has done an exclusive two-part feature for Flare magazine.

She has also been booked daily in New York for fashion magazine layouts, ads and television commercials since she recently began work there with the Elite model agency.

She is destined to be the top Canadian model of all time, says Flare editor, Keitha McLean.

"Jodi radiates energy and enthusiasm - it pops out of every picture she's in - and she's bright and extremely co-operative," says Ms. McLean, who will feature Jodi on the November and March covers.

Frederika LesVies, a scout for City Models in Paris, calls the former student "the amazing Canadian girl with star potential...the face of the 80's."

Jodi was discovered by a waiter at her 17th birthday dinner with her parents in a Toronto restaurant. He gave her a card for the Richard Pollman agency, and Jodi signed up.

Then came the life-changing telephone call.

Frederika LesVies was in Toronto and wanted to see Jodi.

"I arrived without make-up, and all the other girls were done up," she says.

Obviously, her fresh looks and energy shone through, because the scout talked to her Paris agency and was promptly sent back to take Jodi to Paris.

A natural before the cameras and an overnight sensation, she was photographed for fashion layouts, covers and advertisements for major publications like Elle, Italian Vogue and Vital.

Haliburton opened the first quarter with a six play sequence that resulted in a six yard pass from Tim Davies to Scott Arbuthnot for a major score. A mishandled snap resulted in the convert being missed. Davies then intercepted a Weldon pass and three plays later attempted a field goal that was short, score remained 6-0.

In the second quarter the Redmen continued to dominate and another field goal was attempted at the 25 yard line, however this too was wide and the Weldon player ran the ball out of the endzone to deprive Haliburton of even a single.

Davies again intercepted on Weldon's next series of offensive plays and ran to the Wildcat six yard line. Kevin Shapiera scored from here to make it 12-0. Haliburton then tried a two point conversion but were unsuccessful.

With time running out in the first half Weldon had the ball on their own three yard line with second and 12 yards to go. Their quarterback went back to pass and hit his wide receiver who ran the rest of the way for a 109 yard TD. The major was converted and score at halftime was 12-7.

Haliburton had the only scoring chance in the third when they attempted a 25 yard field goal but once again a bad placement caused placekicker Tim Davies to be wide by inches.

Early in the fourth quarter, Weldon scored the decisive points when the Wildcat passer hit his running back up the middle for a TD. The major was converted and the score was 14-12.

After Weldon took the lead Haliburton still had eight minutes to play but just couldn't put anything together and with a minute left Weldon recovered a Redmen fumble at their 40 yard line and from there ran out the clock.

Super-bricks

(IDRC) - Mud bricks are still the most widely used building material in the world, primarily in developing countries. Now a simple refinement by researchers at Kenyatta University College in Kenya, Africa, may increase their use.

The new technique involves plastering mud blocks with an exterior coating of sisal (the strong plant fibre often used in twine) mixed in cement. This cheap and simple reinforcement means that for the first time people can build a mud house that should last for 20 years. Also, unlike plain mud blocks, sisal-and-cement-coated buildings keep insects out, and are cooler, drier, and cleaner.

"The Royal" — World's Biggest Indoor Agriganza

TORONTO — How're you gonna keep 'em away from the farm, once they've seen the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair?

That's the question they'll be asking again next month when about 300,000 farmers and city slickers congregate at the Coliseum of Toronto's Exhibition Place for the world's largest indoor agricultural show.

This will be the 53rd year of the fair, affectionately known as "The Royal". It will take place from November 12 through 21 and will draw exhibits and visitors from over 60 nations as far away as Zimbabwe and Australia.

There'll be 11 hectares (27 acres) of displays under one roof, all waiting to be judged in world-class competition. You'll see purebred beef and dairy cattle as well as champion swine, sheep, goats, poultry and other farm animals. There'll be many classes of horses, from the heavy draught breeds to the fleet Arabians and hunters. There'll be arts and crafts exhibitions and flower displays. And there'll be tasty tidbits for sampling by the tired and hungry.

One of the highlights of the fair is the Royal Horse Show where international teams compete in a variety of equestrian events. Look for world-class riders such as Canada's Jim Elder and Ian Millar, Great Britain's Harvey Smith and Rodney Jenkins of the United States. The horse show officially opens on the 13th and runs until the last day of the fair.

The great appeal of the Royal to urbanites is the opportunity it provides for them to follow, under one roof, the symbiotic relationship of all agricultural operations. You can see the prize seeds that provide the crops on which prize steers are raised. Then you can see all of the cuts of meat the steer produces, ready for the supermarket. Kids get a thrill, of course, just from seeing all those live animals up close — not just steers and horses, but also sheep, rabbits and goats.

Of particular interest at the Royal this year?

There's the Angora goat display that's part of the Trans-Canada Goat Show. This is a first for Canadian exhibitions. Angoras are the goats from which that beautiful mohair wool is obtained. There's quite a boom in goat farming in Canada now, so it's expected that a large number of people will be attracted to the goat exhibits.

The Canadian sheep shearing competition always attracts a crowd. It starts at 11 a.m. on Saturday, November 12. Be sure to get there early because the stands will be packed as tight as the wool.

Growers of vegetables of all kinds will be in competition, too. Look for the largest pumpkin and squash class — some gourds can grow to a weight of 130 kg (400 lbs).

The exotic beef cattle breeds with colorful names like Blonde D'Aquitaine, Murrey Grey and Welsh Black, are always popular with show visitors, as are the magnificent dairy cattle

Country comes to town: City kids get a thrill from seeing animals close up at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, taking place in Toronto Nov. 12 through 21.

162

Everything about the Husqvarna 162 is dynamite. More power per pound than any other saw. Slim design and great balance for easy handling.

An exclusive muffler design maintains a low noise level and the Husqvarna vibration damping system makes it the smoothest operating saw in its class. CD ignition is standard... as well as all those famous Husqvarna safety features. You can even get the optional Swed-O-Matic chain brake. The only system of its kind to work in any cutting position.

Husqvarna 162. No wonder they call it SUPERSAW!
